WALT: Plan a section of the story.

The form consists of two rows of three boxes each. Each box is divided into two horizontal sections: a top section for drawing and a bottom section for writing, which contains three horizontal lines. The boxes in the top row are connected by arrows pointing from left to right. The boxes in the bottom row are connected by arrows pointing from right to left. On the far right, a large, curved arrow points downwards, indicating a transition or continuation of the story.
